(Feb. 26, 2022) — If in the 2020 general election – falsely touted by some to be “the most secure in the nation’s history,” a claim yet to be validated – you voted for President Trump, this offering is not directed to you.

On the other hand, if you voted for the Goofball at 1600 or did not vote at all – and for which omission you should be ashamed – read on, because you need to answer this question: “Are you happy now?” Few, but more than zero, who voted for the Goof actually read The P&E..., but they..., know..., who..., they..., are. And so does your humble servant.

The question is not merely academic. As a result of your actions – coupled with however many fraudulent ballots ended up being included in the final “popular vote” count – you are personally responsible, along with all others who voted similarly, for burdening the Republic with by far the worst Commander-in-Chief since 1789. And that is only after his first 13 months at the helm.

The Goof’s manifest stupidity and outright mendacity with regard to all things important to the nation will be writ large – and in vibrant neon – in future history books. Assuming, of course, that history books are still allowed publication after he and his censorial apparatchiks finish their work.

From his policies eradicating the southern border; to his disgusting and treasonous rout from Afghanistan, emboldening tyrants worldwide to dare actions which were unthinkable when a president with a backbone was in office; to his horrifically incompetent conversion of the nation from energy independence to energy dependence on hostile foreigners, including the Butcher of Ukraine; to his birthing of inflation rates not seen in 40 years; to his incoherent and deadly mishandling of the Wuhan pandemic...., his short occupancy of the Oval Office is accurately characterized as an uninterrupted series of one abject failure after another.

Again, Goofball enablers: Are you happy now?

As discussed here, his removal by impeachment has become a national imperative. He is too cognitively compromised to even understand that he should resign, so it's either Section 4 of the 25th Amendment or impeachment.

Section 4.

Whenever the Vice President and a majority of either the principal officers of the executive departments or of such other body as Congress may by law provide, transmit to the President pro tempore of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives their written declaration that the President is unable to discharge the powers and duties of his office, the Vice President shall immediately assume the powers and duties of the office as Acting President.

Thereafter, when the President transmits to the President pro tempore of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives his written declaration that no inability exists, he shall resume the powers and duties of his office unless the Vice President and a majority of either the principal officers of the executive department or of such other body as Congress may by law provide, transmit within four days to the President pro tempore of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives their written declaration that the President is unable to discharge the powers and duties of his office. Thereupon Congress shall decide the issue, assembling within forty-eight hours for that purpose if not in session. If the Congress, within twenty-one days after receipt of the latter written declaration, or, if Allowing him even one more day and one more visit to the ice cream parlor is becoming far too risky. Remember: he has access to the nuclear football...., seriously. Yikes. Granted, Kamala Harris is likely constitutionally ineligible to serve as president. But if the Supreme Court doesn't care, why should anyone else care?

On the other hand, if the past 13 months of "Let's Go Brandon" is any indication of the types of perils yet to blossom if he remains in office – e.g., China's ambitions regarding Taiwan – even a blind Martian should be able to see: he needs to go.

The evidence mounts that we have already endured two constitutionally-ineligible presidents – Chester A. Arthur and Barack Hussein Obama, Jr. – so it is unlikely that the Supreme Court, the Constitution notwithstanding, would balk at ratifying Harris's succession to the office if the Goof were removed. Tell me again that the Supreme Court is independent and apolitical. Harris as President, at least until she too became the subject of an impeachment, would be preferable to the marionette from Delaware. But that is another story.

Recall what the SUC (“Second Usurper in Chief, Barack Hussein Obama, Jr.”) said about the Goof: “Don’t underestimate Joe’s ability to – things up.” That is one of the very few cranial nuggets coming from the SUC with which any sentient being should agree.

Again, your humble servant asks those who voted for the clown: Are you happy now?
