(Aug. 7, 2021) — What if... hypothetically speaking, of course..., it were determined that the Wuhan coronavirus was, in fact, specifically engineered in the biological weapons unit of a laboratory in, say, China? And what if, hypothetically, it were to be factually established that members of the Chinese Peoples Liberation [sic] Army had perfected and sought a patent for a vaccine effective against such a laboratory-engineered biologically-weaponized virus prior to its release?"

And what if it were confirmed that following some preliminary “accidental” releases of the virus in Wuhan, China, residents of that city were forbidden to travel to other places in China, but were allowed to freely travel internationally to other countries?

And what if... again, hypothetically speaking..., it were proven that the virus was weaponized through “gain of function” genomic manipulation financed by scientists and virologists more interested in “what can be done” through Dr. Frankenstein experimentations rather than in “what should be done” as a matter of morality?

And what if – hypothetically – it were shown that the weapon was intentionally loosed on the world in a calculated attempt to cripple all other nations via a biological pandemic designed to pave a path to planetary hegemony orchestrated and controlled from Beijing, China?

Finally, what if... of course, again speaking hypothetically..., the weapon were proven to have caused the decimation of the world’s economies to the tune of, say, one hundred trillion dollars, sparing largely the economy of ... China?

Might all of this be enough to at minimum raise the question: does this not describe an unconventional, asymmetrical war the likes of which the Earth has never before seen? And lest your faithful servant be accused of midnight contact with the Mother Ship in stationary orbit over Area 51, read more about the hypothetical war here and here.

Faithful P&E readers, the world is now in a much different state than it was in September, 1939, when Adolph Hitler's troops invaded Poland, ushering in World War II. That was an obvious act of war. It is clearly different than it was on December 7, 1941, when Emperor Hirohito's Zero aircraft attacked Pearl Harbor, plainly, an act of war.

And it is far different than it was on August 6 and August 9, 1945, when President Harry S. Truman (D) ordered the world's second and third nuclear bombs (the first test bomb was detonated three weeks earlier at Trinity Site, in New Mexico) dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki, instantly incinerating or later killing from radiation poisoning and cancer as many as 225,000 Japanese – virtually all of whom were civilians – in another act of war that brought the final close to World War II.

War is merciless and grotesquely ugly. But as technology has evolved, the nature of war and warfare has also evolved. While nuclear bombs and exotic weapons of extraordinary violence and capacity to maim remain available, increasingly we see, with some notable exceptions, warfare taking on a “kinder, gentler” patina of killing a people, a nation – or both – without the messiness of physically ruining cities, suburbs, airports, harbors, highways, farms and forests. Once vanquished, a defeated nation's remaining infrastructure can be useful to the victors.

In this regard, one is reminded of several of the principles espoused by the ancient Chinese General Sun Tzu in his tome The Art of War written some 2,600 years ago.

In the first chapter of The Art of War, Ch. I, “Laying Plans,” § 18, SunTzu opines that “[a]ll warfare is based on deception.” If ever there were a time when the Chinese Communist Party (“CCP”) – aided and abetted by a complicit World Health [sic] Organization and a weak and defective Goofball-in-Chief in the Oval Office – was conducting itself according to the blueprint for deception laid out in General Sun Tzu’s tome by deploying a global pandemic disguised as an accidental “escape” from a bat sold in a Wuhan “wet market,” ... it is now.

Sun Tzu further advises (Ch. III, “Attack by Stratagem,” § 6) that “[t]he skillful leader subdues the enemy’s troops without any fighting; he captures their cities without laying siege to them; he overthrows their kingdom without lengthy operations in the field.” Sun Tzu adds (Ch. III, § 11): “[t]he general is the bulwark of the State; if the bulwark is complete at all points, the State will be strong; if the bulwark is defective, the State will be weak.” (Emphasis added)

Any sentient American – thereby excluding most liberals, Democrat members of Congress and the Goebbels-Democrat propaganda merchants at MSNBC, CNN, The Washington Post and the Gray Trollop – who believes that the Goofball is both “strong” and not manifestly “defective” in both body and mind... is a fool. Memo to the Goofball: the CCP is not “Corn Pop”; you are not Popeye; but on most occasions, you do resemble Bozo.

Why bother detonating a nuclear device in space to produce a devastating “electromagnetic pulse” when the trajectory of that weapon could instantly be traced back to a launch site in China? Why not just let infected residents of Wuhan spread across the globe on international flights... before people catch on? Let nature and the propaganda machines of the United States and other Western nations do the rest. The CCP is likely already salivating over the potential for additional viral “variants” to appear and further panic the world's governments into yet additional lockdowns and human rights violations in the name of "public safety."

Against this backdrop, an argument can be made that the marionette masters who have been and currently are manipulating the Goofball's strings – some likely acting in concert with, or at least with the tacit approval of, the CCP – are the major players behind the unconventional and asymmetric war now being waged against the United States. Make no mistake: we are at war on several fronts, some of which are more apparent than others, but each one, nonetheless, is a war.

We are at war with one another fanned by racial animosities concocted by mainstream media outlets who give platforms to race-baiting demagogues. We are at war with one another over the response to the pandemic, including whether to "mask up" or not; whether to get vaccinated or not; and whether to submit to even more draconian and often outright stupid governmental edicts having zero basis in "the science," but imposed for the naked purpose of "doing something" to seem "proactive." Lord Acton was right: "Power corrupts; absolute power corrupts absolutely."

Beyond dispute, the weapon of choice in this asymmetric war is the Wuhan coronavirus, now seemingly proven to have originated as an engineered biologic toxin and intentionally released into the world from the Wuhan Institute of Virology lab in Wuhan, China. And, thanks to the "gain-of-function" financial assistance of Dr. Anthony ("What-I-can't-do-directly-I-will-do-indirectly") Fauci via the end-around run on Obama's "moratorium," the weapon has thus far proven to be extremely effective.

The war is upon us, and the sooner that the remaining sentient part of the population realizes that truth and determines to fight back, the better. The real question is, against this backdrop, what will be the Goofball's response? Right now, he is doing more to further China's hegemonic goals under the guidance of Sun Tzu's vision than protecting the United States.

He has de facto eradicated our southern border, allowing thousands of illegal aliens – many carrying the Wuhan bioweapon with them – to be transported throughout the nation. He violates hourly his oath of office and the constitutional mandate that he "take care that the laws be faithfully executed." He disregards clear and unambiguous decisions of the Supreme Court, putting in place by imperial fiat policies specifically forbidden by the Court.

Worse, he revels in each periodic proposal for another multi-trillion dollar spending orgy, an irresponsible, reckless and dangerous habit that will turn myriad future generations of Americans into tax slaves and eventually lead to the collapse of the “shining city on a hill” into the bowels of destruction. Recall, Virginia, that the total cost of World War II, adjusted to 2021 dollars, was a mere \$4.1 trillion. Today, the entire cost of World War II is replicated every few weeks when the Goofball or the Congress proposes a new “stimulus” or “infrastructure” bill. This is treasonous madness.

Sun Tzu was right: when the bulwark is defective, the state will be weak. Not a good thing in wartime. Really not a good thing.
